Introduction

The English Language Arts 30–1 Diploma Examination is designed to reflect the Program of Studies for Senior High School English Language Arts, which outlines a variety of specific learning outcomes organized under five general outcomes in six language arts: listening, speaking, reading, writing, viewing, and representing. Because of the interconnected nature of the five general outcomes, both Part A and Part B of the diploma examination will assess, at least indirectly, all the general outcomes. The specific outcomes that will be assessed are indicated on the blueprints and scoring guides.
Examination Security

All English Language Arts 30–1 Diploma Examinations will be held secure until they are released to the public by the Minister. No secure diploma examination is to be previewed, discussed, copied, or removed from the room in which the examination is being written. However, for the January and June examinations, teachers will be allowed access to a teacher perusal copy for review purposes one hour after the examination has started. All diploma examination booklets must be kept secure, with the exception of Part A: Written Response in the January and June administrations of humanities examinations after they have been written. Unused copies of all secure examination booklets must be returned to Alberta Education.

For more information about teacher perusal copies and examination security, please refer to the General Information Bulletin.

Time Limits on Diploma Examinations

All students may use extra time to write diploma examinations. This means that all students have up to 6 hours to complete the English Language Arts 30–1 Diploma Examination, if they need it. The examination is nevertheless designed so that the majority of students can complete it within 3 hours. The examination instructions state both the designed time and the total time available.

Extra time is available for diploma examinations in all subjects, but the total time allowed is not the same in all subjects. For more information about accommodations and provisions for students, please refer to the General Information Bulletin.
Maintaining Consistent Standards over Time on Diploma Examinations

A goal of Alberta Education is to make scores achieved on examinations within the same subject directly comparable from session to session, to ensure fairness to students across administrations.

To achieve this goal, the examination has a number of questions in common with a previous examination. Common items are used to find out if the student population writing in one administration differs in achievement from the student population writing in another administration. Common items are also used to find out if the unique items (questions that have never appeared in a previous examination) differ in difficulty from the unique items on the baseline examination that sets the standard to which all students are held.

A statistical process called equating adjusts for differences in difficulty between examinations. Examination marks may be adjusted depending upon the difficulty of the examination written relative to the baseline examination. Therefore, the resulting equated examination scores have the same meaning regardless of when and to whom the examination was administered. Equated diploma examination marks are reported to students. More information about equating is available here.

Because of the security required to ensure fair and appropriate assessment of student achievement over time, English Language Arts 30–1 Diploma Examinations will be fully secured and will not be released at the time of writing.
Diploma Examinations: Multiple Forms

As part of Alberta Education’s commitment to fairness to students and flexibility in the writing of diploma examinations, there are two distinct forms (versions) of diploma examinations in some subjects during major administrations (January and June). The two forms are equated to baseline examinations to ensure that the same standard applies to both forms. Both forms adhere to the established blueprint specifications and are reviewed by a technical review committee.

To facilitate the analysis of school-level results, each school receives only one examination form per subject. In subjects offering a translated French-language examination, both forms are administered in English and in French.

Field Testing

Field testing is an essential stage in the development of fair, valid, and reliable provincial examinations. Field testing is a process of collecting data on questions before they become part of a diploma examination. Potential diploma examination questions are administered to students in diploma courses throughout the province to determine their difficulty level and appropriateness. Each field test requires a large student sample to provide the examination developers with reliable information (statistical data and written validation comments from teachers and students).

How do field tests help teachers and students?
Teachers obtain each student's score promptly, gaining useful information about their students' performance. Students benefit from writing a test that duplicates some of the experience of writing a diploma examination. Field tests provide students and teachers with examples of the format and content of questions that may appear on diploma examinations. Finally, because of field testing, students, teachers, and parents can be reassured that the questions on diploma examinations have undergone a rigorous process of development, improvement, and validation.

How are field-test data used?
The data received from field tests indicate the validity, reliability, and fairness of each question. Questions that meet specific standards are selected for use on future diploma examinations.

Some questions or sets of questions may not initially perform as well as we require. These questions may be revised and field tested again. Revisions are influenced by the written comments of students and teachers, who provide valuable advice about the appropriateness of the questions, adequacy of writing-time limits, test length, text readability, artwork/graphics clarity and suitability, and question difficulty.

Humanities field tests
While most field tests in humanities subjects are in conventional paper form, some field tests are partially online (“hybrids”). Hybrid field tests combine a paper copy of sources or readings with questions read and answered online using Alberta Education's Quest A+ system.

Effective September 1, 2019, paper field tests that were previously only administered by an Alberta Education-contracted employee may now be administered at the school level, if requested by the classroom teacher or the principal.

Teachers have a 24-hour period to peruse hybrid field tests and are provided with data on how their students performed. These data include the proportion of students who chose each alternative. Test items are blueprinted to program of studies outcomes, which allows teachers to use field-test results to learn more about their students' strengths and weaknesses.

Once logged into the hybrid field test on the online delivery system, teachers have the same length of time to peruse the test as their students did to write it. Teachers might choose to log into the field test, submit the confidentiality form, and then log out of the test, so that they can finish perusing the test after receiving their students' data.
It is important to note that the security of field-test items remains vital to the administration of diploma examinations. Participating teachers must commit to maintaining the security of field-test items. In the case of hybrid field tests, paper copies of sources or readings are mailed to schools. Prior to the test, the paper copies must be kept secure by the school principal, and after the administration of the test, all paper copies must be mailed back to Alberta Education.

More information about field-test administration and security is available here.

How can teachers request field tests?

Teachers requesting field tests must have a Public Authentication System (PAS) account. All requests are made through the Field Test Request System. Further information, including the closing dates to request a field test, may be obtained here, or by contacting Field.Test@gov.ab.ca. Practice tests are available online.

Special-format Practice Tests

To give students an opportunity to practise diploma examination-style questions and content in Braille, audio, large print, or coloured print versions, Alberta Education produces special-format practice tests for all subjects that have a diploma examination. Alberta schools with registered Alberta K–12 students may place orders for these tests. Braille versions are available in English and, by request, in French. All tests are provided free of charge, but limits may be placed on order volumes to ensure access for all students.

For the greatest benefit, special-format practice tests should be written under conditions similar to those of the corresponding diploma examination. The same rules regarding the use of resources and devices should be followed.

Braille versions must be returned to Alberta Education after use.

How to Get Involved

High-quality diploma examinations are the product of close collaboration between classroom teachers and Alberta Education. Classroom teachers from across Alberta are involved in many aspects of diploma examination development, including the development of items; the building, reviewing, administering, and marking of field tests; the reviewing and validating of diploma examinations; and the marking of diploma examinations.

The development of test items from when they are written until when they appear on an examination takes at least one year. All items on English Language Arts 30–1 Diploma Examinations are written by English Language Arts 30–1 teachers from across Alberta. After the first year of provincial implementation of the program of studies, items are field tested to ensure their reliability and validity. Diploma examinations are reviewed by editors and validated by working groups that consist of classroom teachers and curriculum staff.

Alberta Education values the involvement of the teachers and annually asks school jurisdictions for the names of teachers who are interested in being involved in any of the development processes for diploma examinations. Teachers who are interested in developing items, constructing field tests, or reviewing and validating examinations are encouraged to talk to their principals about how they can submit their names for approval to be involved in these processes. Although the call for submissions occurs each fall, teachers are welcome to have their names submitted at any time.

Teachers may also be nominated by their school authority to mark written-response assignments for Humanities and Mathematics Diploma Examinations. The call for nominations occurs in early September (for January and April marking) and again in February (for June, August and November marking). Teachers who would like to be nominated to mark diploma exams are encouraged to talk to their principals.

Periodically, we send out information to those English Language Arts 30–1 teachers who are on our contact list. If you are not on that list and would like to receive updates related to English Language Arts 30–1 assessment activities, please contact either Gary Hoogers, English Language Arts 30–1 Exam Manager, at Gary.Hoogers@gov.ab.ca or Vera Franjic, English Language Arts 30–1 Examiner, at Vera.Franjic@gov.ab.ca.
Assessment Standards and Practices for English Language Arts 30–1

Weightings

The diploma examination mark constitutes 30% of a student’s final mark while the school-awarded mark constitutes 70% of a student’s final mark in English Language Arts 30-1.

Examination Format and Weightings

The English Language Arts 30–1 Diploma Examination is made up of two parts:

- Part A: Written Response (50%) and Part B: Multiple Choice (50%).

Part A: Written Response Assignments, Scoring Categories, and Weightings

- Personal Response to Texts Assignment (20%)
  - Ideas and Impressions 10%
  - Presentation 10%

- Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts Assignment (30%)
  - Thought and Understanding 7.5%
  - Supporting Evidence 7.5%
  - Form and Structure 5.0%
  - Matters of Choice 5.0%
  - Matters of Correctness 5.0%

Part B: Readings

The Part B: Reading component is an assessment of students’ abilities to read a variety of literary texts closely. Critical reading and thinking skills; understanding of vocabulary; appreciation of tone, figurative language, and rhetorical devices; understanding of the purposes and effects of writers’ choices; and appreciation of human experience and values reflected in literature will be assessed. Text types include excerpts from extended texts—novel, book-length nonfiction, modern and/or contemporary drama, and Shakespearean drama—and shorter texts—poetry; short story; visual texts; persuasive, personal, expository, biographical, and autobiographical essays; and popular nonfiction. Some questions will be linked to more than one reading selection; that is, they will ask students to consider two or more readings connected by technique, context, and/or theme.

| Time Limits on Diploma Examinations | All students may now use extra time to write diploma exams. This means that all students now have up to 6 hours to complete the English Language Arts 30–1 Diploma Examination, if they need it. The examination is still designed so that the majority of students can comfortably complete it within 3 hours. The examination instructions state both the original time and the total time now available. Extra time is available for diploma examinations in all subjects, but the time limits of other examinations may differ. For more information about accommodations and provisions for students, please refer to the General Information Bulletin. |
Suggested word count range

All Part A Humanities written-response assignments contain a suggested word count range. Students can use the suggested word count range, along with the suggested time limit, as a guideline when responding to the assignment. The range is not a cap, and students who handwrite will not be expected to hand-count their words.

The suggested word count ranges below are based on various sources, including the student exemplars chosen for the Examples of the Standards for Students’ Writing, and on discussions with psychometricians and curriculum staff. They also reflect discussions with teachers during exam development regarding the expectations for each written-response assignment.

Written-response Assignment Suggested Word Count Range

English Language Arts 30–1 Assignment 1: 600–1200 words
English Language Arts 30–1 Assignment 2: 800–1600 words

Note: There are approximately 300 words per page, depending on the font size used and other factors. The expectations for student responses, including written responses, are unchanged.

Release of examination materials

Providing examples of readings and multiple-choice questions is the best way to demonstrate how the English Language Arts 30–1 examinations have been designed to support the Program of Studies for Senior High School English Language Arts. The Released Items 2016 contains readings and 40 questions from various administrations. An answer key, item descriptions, blueprint classifications, and performance data are also included to offer insights regarding the knowledge and understanding as well as skills and processes students are expected to demonstrate when writing the English Language Arts 30–1 Part B Reading component.

Part A: Written Response of both the January 2020 and June 2020 administrations of the English Language Arts 30–1 Diploma Examination will be released following administration; however, Part B: Reading will be fully secured for both the January and June 2020 administrations.
Classroom assessment

Because many types of assessment are suited to classroom situations only, teachers should ensure that their assessment of student progress reflects the full Program of Study for Grades 10–12 English Language Arts.

Other support documents

A Guide for Students Preparing to Write the English Language Arts 30–1 Diploma Examination and Examples of the Standards for Students’ Writing from various administrations of the English Language Arts 30–1 Diploma Examination are posted on the Alberta Education website. Please note that the texts presented in the Sample Personal Response to Texts Assignment on pages 21 to 23 of this document do not necessarily reflect the length or number of texts that will be presented to students in the 2019–2020 Part A: Written Response, Personal Response to Texts Assignments.

Blueprints

The blueprints for Part A and Part B of the English Language Arts 30–1 Diploma Examination are on pages 17 and 39, respectively.
Part A: Written Response

Description

Part A: Written Response, worth 50% of the total diploma examination mark, consists of two assignments:

• Personal Response to Texts Assignment

• Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts Assignment

Lined pages

Lined pages for handwritten student responses are not included in Part A diploma examination booklets. A template lined page (Written-Response Bilingual Lined Page) can be downloaded for printing from the Alberta Education website.

Authorized reference

Students writing Part A: Written Response are allowed to use the following print references:

• an English and/or bilingual dictionary

• a thesaurus

• an authorized writing handbook

Seven writing handbooks are authorized by Provincial Assessment Sector at this time for use during the administration of Part A:

• A Canadian Writer’s Guide (J. Finnbogason and A. Valleau), second edition only

• A Canadian Writer’s Reference (D. Hacker)

• Checkmate: A Writing Reference for Canadians (J. Buckley)

• English Language Arts Handbook for Secondary Students (Alberta Education)

• Fit to Print: The Canadian Student’s Guide to Essay Writing (J. Buckley)

• The St. Martin’s Handbook for Canadians (A. Lunsford et al.)

• The Writing Process (Q. Gehle et al.)

With the exception of A Canadian Writer’s Guide, any edition of these texts is acceptable for use. Students and supervising examiners must remove any extraneous material from print references.
Personal Response to Texts Assignment

The Personal Response to Texts Assignment requires students to explore a given thematic topic in response to given texts that will include visual text(s) and any combination of fiction, nonfiction, and/or poetry.

This assignment is designed to

• be completed in approximately 45 to 60 minutes

• provide students with the opportunity to use a prose form of their choice to create personal responses that convey their ideas about the topic as prompted by their reading of a text or texts

• encourage the expression of student voice with an awareness of the contexts and intended audiences of the prose forms that the students have chosen

• introduce students to the thematic context of the Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts Assignment

Students are expected to write developed responses that reflect the quality of logical thought and effective presentation expected of students graduating from English Language Arts 30–1.

Value: 20% of the total examination mark (Parts A and B combined)

Scoring: Scores contribute to the total examination mark in the following proportions:

Ideas and Impressions 10%
Presentation 10%

Insufficient

Compositions that provide no evidence of an attempt to fulfill the task presented in the assignment are assessed as Insufficient.

A response assigned an Insufficient receives a score of zero in both scoring categories.

Insufficient is a special category. It is not an indicator of quality. Compositions are assigned Insufficient when

• the student has responded using a form other than prose OR

• the student has written so little that it is not possible to assess Ideas and Impressions OR

• there is no evidence that the topic presented in the assignment has been addressed OR

• there is no connection between the text(s) provided in the assignment and the student’s response OR

• there is no evidence of an attempt to fulfill the task presented in the assignment.
Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts Assignment

The Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts Assignment requires students to relate literature that they have studied in English Language Arts 30–1 to an assigned topic based on the thematic context introduced in the Personal Response to Texts Assignment.

The Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts Assignment sets a specific writing task that requires students to choose relevant literary text(s) and appropriate support (e.g., details, examples, illustrations) from their chosen text(s), and to select an effective method of development. The assignment requires students to demonstrate their understanding of the chosen literature studied in English Language Arts 30–1 to a topic that is related to the thematic context introduced in the Personal Response to Texts Assignment.

The specific topic prompt for the Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts Assignment will not be identical to that of the Personal Response to Texts Assignment. It will in some manner provide a reframing of the thematic context already introduced (e.g., adding a thematic context, qualifying a theme, specifying a human attribute).

Students should choose from literary texts that they have studied in depth in English Language Arts 30–1. Texts which have literary merit and complexity of theme and style provide students with the best opportunity to produce a response that demonstrates insight and skillful analysis. When planning their response, the Personal Reflection on Choice of Literary Text(s) section allows students to explore their reasons for choosing a particular text in order to clarify their ideas prior to beginning the Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts Assignment.

In better responses, it is evident that students have deliberately chosen the text and support that reinforces their ideas in relation to the assigned topic.

Students are encouraged to write about literary texts that they understand and that they enjoy. The best way for students to prepare for the diploma examination is to learn strategies that assist them with the development of strong reading and writing skills.

This assignment is designed to

- be completed in approximately 1½ to 2 hours
- assess students’ responses to the thematic topic
- assess the quality of students’ knowledge and understanding of literary text(s) and the ability to employ, develop, and synthesize evidence to support their ideas
- assess students’ ability to use an appropriate form and structure to focus, arrange, and shape their discussions using effective and correct language choices

When responding to the Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts Assignment, students have the opportunity to reveal their understanding of a writer’s craft and their interpretations of the texts they have chosen to discuss and to demonstrate how well they can express their ideas in first-draft writing. Markers are interested in learning what students actually think and believe. Formulaic approaches to writing often impede students’ ability to express ideas clearly or to create an authentic voice.
Value: 30% of the total examination mark (parts A and B combined)

Scoring: Scores contribute to the total examination mark in the following proportions:

- Thought and Understanding: 7.5%
- Supporting Evidence: 7.5%
- Form and Structure: 5.0%
- Matters of Choice: 5.0%
- Matters of Correctness: 5.0%

Insufficient

Compositions that refer only to the reading selections provided in the examination or that demonstrate no evidence of an attempt to fulfill the task presented in the assignment are assessed as Insufficient.

A response assigned an Insufficient receives the score of zero in all scoring categories.

Insufficient is a special category. It is not an indicator of quality. Compositions are assigned Insufficient when

- the student has written so little that it is not possible to assess Thought and Understanding and/or Supporting Evidence OR
- no reference has been made to literature studied OR
- the only literary reference present is to the text(s) provided in the first assignment OR
- there is no evidence of an attempt to address the topic or fulfill the task presented in the assignment.

Illustrative examples

The Examples of the Standards for Students' Writing documents available on the Alberta Education website at education.alberta.ca are from previous examinations and are a valuable teaching resource. They demonstrate the standards for first-draft writing expected of students by the end of their English Language Arts 30–1 course in the context of a timed test. Note that the sample responses in these documents have been provided for illustrative purposes only. If students use sections from these responses when writing Part A of the diploma examination, they are guilty of plagiarism and will be in breach of examination regulations.

Blueprint purpose

The English Language Arts 30–1 Diploma Examinations are designed to reflect the Program of Studies for Senior High School English Language Arts. The blueprint on the following page outlines the design of Part A. It presents the relationship between the requirements of the writing assignment and scoring of assignments as well as the headings and subheadings used to organize the specific learning outcomes in the program of studies.

As well, the blueprint delineates the categories used to report summary data to school authorities and high schools, and the percentage that each section of the examination contributes to the total examination mark.

Part A: Written Response sample assignments, scoring categories, and scoring criteria

January 2019

English Language Arts 30–1

Part A: Written Response

Grade 12 Diploma Examination

Description

Time: 3 hours. This examination was developed to be completed in 3 hours; however, you may take up to 6 hours to complete the examination, should you need it.

Part A: Written Response consists of two assignments worth 50% of the total English Language Arts 30–1 diploma examination mark.

Assignment I:

Personal Response to Texts

Value 20% of total examination mark

Assignment II:

Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts

Value 30% of total examination mark

Recommendation: Plan your time carefully. Use the initial planning pages. Time spent in planning will result in better writing.

- You may use the following print references:
  - an English and/or bilingual dictionary
  - a thesaurus
  - an authorized writing handbook

- Space is provided in this booklet for planning.

Instructions

- Complete Assignment I first. The Personal Response to Texts Assignment is designed to allow you time to think and reflect upon the ideas that you may also explore in Assignment II: Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts. The two assignments are thematically linked, but are not identical. Complete both assignments.

- It is your responsibility to print out (or handwrite) and staple all of your final written work to the designated pages in this booklet. You must also verify that this has been done correctly. Page 9 illustrates how to attach your final work to the booklet.

Additional Instructions for Students Using Word Processors

- Format your work using an easy-to-read 12-point font, double space, and use headers and footers as illustrated on page 9.

Additional Instructions for Students Who are Handwriting

- Use the paper provided by your school for handwritten work. Note that there is no paper provided in this booklet for final written work.

- Use blue or black ink for handwritten work.

Do not write your name anywhere in this booklet or on your response. Feel free to make handwritten revisions directly on your final response.
ASSIGNMENT I: PERSONAL RESPONSE TO TEXTS
Suggested time: approximately 45 to 60 minutes
Suggested word count range: 600 to 1200 words

ASSIGNMENT I: PERSONAL RESPONSE TO TEXTS
Suggested time: approximately 45 to 60 minutes
Suggested word count range: 600 to 1200 words

You have been provided with three texts on pages 1 to 4. The speaker in Meghan O’Rourke’s “Poem of Regret for an Old Friend” considers the manner in which a person has lived. In the excerpt from Sean Michaels’ novel Us Conductors, the narrator and his friend participate briefly in a protest before taking shelter. Thomas Hoepker’s photograph shows a wealthy landowner sitting down for his dinner.

The Assignment

What do these texts suggest to you about the interplay between satisfaction and regret in an individual’s life? Support your idea(s) with reference to one or more of the prompting texts presented and to your previous knowledge and/or experience.

In your writing, you must

• use a prose form

• connect one or more of the prompting texts provided in this examination to the topic and to your own ideas and impressions

The texts presented in the Sample Personal Response to Texts Assignment on pages 21 to 23 do not necessarily indicate the length or number of texts that will be presented to students in the 2019–2020 Part A: Written Response, Personal Response to Texts Assignment.

Notes

Because students’ responses to the Personal Response to Texts Assignment vary widely—from philosophical discussions to personal narratives to creative approaches—assessment of the Personal Response to Texts Assignment on the diploma examination will be in the context of Louise Rosenblatt’s suggestion:

… the evaluation of the answers would be in terms of the amount of evidence that the youngster has actually read something and thought about it, not a question of whether, necessarily, he has thought about it the way an adult would, or given an adult’s “correct” answer.

Markers will also consider Grant P. Wiggins’ suggestion that we should assess students’ writing “with the tact of Socrates: tact to respect the student’s ideas enough to enter them fully—even more fully than the thinker sometimes—and thus the tact to accept apt but unanticipatable or unique responses.”

ASSIGNMENT II: CRITICAL/ANALYTICAL RESPONSE TO LITERARY TEXTS ASSIGNMENT
Suggested time: approximately 1½ to 2 hours
Suggested word count range: 800 to 1600 words

Do not use the texts provided in this booklet for the Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts Assignment. Choose from short stories, novels, plays, screenplays, poetry, films, or other literary texts that you have studied in English Language Arts 30–1. When considering the works that you have studied, choose a literary text (or texts) that is meaningful to you and relevant to the following assignment.

The Assignment

Discuss the idea(s) developed by the text creator in your chosen text about the ways in which the feelings of satisfaction and regret influence an individual’s actions.

In your planning and writing, consider the following instructions.

• Carefully consider your controlling idea and how you will create a strong unifying effect in your response.

• As you develop your ideas, support them with appropriate, relevant, and meaningful examples from your choice of literary text(s).

Part B: Reading

Description

Part B: Reading is worth 50% of the total diploma examination mark and consists of 70 machine-scored questions based on readings from shorter texts and excerpts from extended texts.

Part B: Reading is an assessment of students’ ability to read a variety of literary texts closely. Critical reading and thinking skills, understanding of vocabulary, appreciation of tone and literary and rhetorical devices, understanding of the purpose and effect of writers’ choices, and appreciation of human experience and values reflected in literature will be assessed at the level of challenge appropriate for graduating English Language Arts 30–1 students.

Readings

Texts will include:

- Shakespearean drama
- Modern and/or contemporary drama—may include television or radio scripts or screenplays
- Poetry
- Fiction and nonfiction readings representing a broad selection of literary texts, which includes persuasive, personal, expository, biographical, and autobiographical texts
- Photographs and other visual texts—may include cartoons, advertisements, or works of art

Students may be required to make comparisons between thematically connected texts and/or to explore the context within which a text was created and/or presented in the readings.

Reading selections will reflect the minimum one-third Canadian texts requirement in the Program of Studies for Senior High School English Language Arts. Readings will also reflect a variety of cultural perspectives.

Questions

The questions on Part B: Reading progress through each selection in a manner intended to assist students with their reading. For this reason, and with the inclusion of linked readings and items, students should read the passages and answer the questions in the order in which they appear in the booklets.

Linked passages and questions

When presented with texts in combination or in sequence, students are expected to maintain a critical awareness across multiple texts. Texts may be linked to reading selections that offer interpretations, background information, or parallel thematic presentations. Students may be asked to identify similar or contradictory ideas, identify biases evident in a passage, or assess the appropriateness of a conclusion drawn from the context in which the text was created or the context created by the passages collectively.
Sample readings and questions

The Released Items 2016 contains readings and 40 questions from various administrations. An answer key, item descriptions, blueprint classifications, and performance data are also included to offer insights regarding the knowledge and understanding as well as skills and processes students are expected to demonstrate when writing the English Language Arts 30-1 Part B: Reading component.

Student Achievement on the January and June 2019
English Language Arts 30–1 Diploma Examinations

These comments are intended to provide classroom teachers with impressions concerning strengths and weaknesses as demonstrated on the English Language Arts 30–1 Diploma Examinations written in January and June 2019. Information provided here is best used in conjunction with school and/or school authority reports for January and June 2019, and with information gleaned by the classroom teacher concerning student strengths and weaknesses displayed during the 2018–2019 school year. By reviewing results on past diploma examinations, classroom teachers may be able to strengthen their instructional programs and enhance student success.

To view examples of student responses to the writing assignments, Examples of the Standards for Students’ Writing, refer to the Alberta Education website.

Part A: Written Response

In January and June 2019, the topics for the two assignments in the Part A: Written Response portion of the exam remained thematically linked, but the specific topics for each assignment were different. For both administrations, the Personal Response to Texts Assignment topic established a general thematic context in relation to the given prompting texts. The Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts Assignment then built upon that established thematic context and asked students to consider and discuss a more narrowly focused topic in relation to a text they had studied during their English Language Arts 30–1 course.

The 2018–2019 school year was the second year where the extra time provision was available to all students. This change has not affected the standard that is expected and that markers utilized in scoring the written-response assignments. Anecdotally, markers continued to report that they did read some student work that seemed longer than in previous years, particularly for students taking a creative approach for the Personal Response to Texts Assignment; however, many of the responses were similar in length to previous years. Overall, markers also noted that the length for most student responses to the Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts Assignment remained consistent with previous years. One commonly related observation for both assignments was that the planning exhibited by students is often quite detailed and extensive, much more so than in years before the extra time provision was available.

Assignment I: Personal Response to Texts Assignment

In both January and June, markers noted that students took a variety of approaches to the assignment and topics. As has been the case for a number of administrations now, the “hybrid” approach, whereby students provide some form of a personal anecdote along with either analytical or philosophical discussion of one or more of the prompting texts, continues to be the most common form of response. In terms of creative approaches used by students, narratives were by far the most common.

There continued to be a small number of students responding to the assignment by making reference to or analyzing literature other than the provided prompting texts. As in previous administrations, these responses often proved challenging for markers to assess in terms of the exploration of the topic in relation to the provided prompting text(s). In some cases, there was no reference to any of the prompting texts, which resulted in them being assessed as Insufficient.
Another form of “problematic response” evident in both sessions were those that claimed to reference one or more of the prompting texts in the planning but the responses themselves had no evident link to any of the prompting texts. Although the planning page(s) can assist markers by giving them some indication of the direction taken by the student, it is the response itself that is scored. Regardless of the prose form chosen by the student, there must be clear reference to at least one of the prompting texts in the response.

For the 2019 administrations, markers were asked to identify the manner in which students referenced the prompting texts, and whether the reference(s) being made were implicit, explicit but brief, or explicit and extended. While the prose form response to each prompting text may differ, overall, more students made explicit and extended references to the prompting texts. This situation was especially true for the prose excerpt in both January and June. In cases where the reference to the prompting text was explicit but brief, markers noted differing levels of effectiveness. In situations where references of this sort seemed to lack a consideration of the prompting text as a whole and were simply “tacked on,” they often did little to support or develop the exploration of the topic. Additionally, because of a lack of connection and integration of the textual reference(s) to the student’s own ideas and support, the unifying and/or aesthetic effect was often negatively impacted. More effective responses that utilized explicit but brief reference(s) to the prompting text(s) did so in a way that recognized the significance of the detail chosen and its relation to the response as a whole. Implicit references to the prompting texts tended to be found more in personal/anecdotal or in creative responses.

As in previous administrations, the more successful “hybrid” responses continued to exhibit clear and genuine connections between the personal anecdote and the prompting text(s) provided on the exam. Markers noted that, increasingly, the more successful of these responses balanced or, in some cases, interwove analysis of one or more of the prompting texts and personal experience. This consideration of the prompting text went beyond just a simple comparison or “parallel” experience and allowed students the opportunity to consider the significance of their ideas and demonstrate an insightful exploration of the assigned topic. In the less successful hybrid responses, however, there was often little, if any, connection noted between the student’s personal experience or anecdote and the prompting text(s).

Although the hybrid personal/analytical response was still the single most popular prose form, the number of students who wrote from a personal perspective with only brief or implicit reference(s) to the prompting text(s) continues to be very high. In the most successful responses of this nature, students generated ideas clearly in response to the prompting text(s) but focused their discussion on a meaningful anecdote, experience, or philosophical perspective and reflected on it purposefully in relation to the assigned topic. In weaker responses of this type, students tended simply to recount a narrative or anecdote that either paralleled the prompting text(s) or provided an illustration of the assigned topic. Responses of this type did little to explore ideas or offer meaningful reflection on either the prompting text(s) or personal experience.

For students who chose a more analytic form of response—whether that included a personal aspect or not—markers noted that the more successful responses demonstrated a judicious selection of support from the prompting text(s) to develop the ideas and impressions. In these responses, students were clearly exploring the assigned topic and developing their own interpretations. In less successful analytic responses, often the exploration of the student’s ideas about the topic was lacking, and the development of support did not move beyond simply providing examples from the prompting text(s) that reflected the topic. Lengthy summaries of the provided prompting text(s) alone did not constitute analysis and exploration of the topic.
In terms of those students choosing to utilize a creative form for their response, markers noted that successful responses of this type often demonstrated awareness and use of the expected conventions associated with the chosen creative prose form as part of the unifying effect. Additionally, the notes on the Initial Planning page typically identified and/or outlined the overall understanding, purpose, and/or intended development of the response, which allowed for a focused and concise approach. In these instances, markers were readily able to recognize how students’ creative responses to the topic were prompted by the careful reading and consideration of the prompting text(s). As in previous administrations, markers continued to note that some responses were problematic in that they offered little or no evidence that the students had actually read, thought about, and developed a response to the prompting text(s). Although a response may be on topic, if a student fails to provide a connection between the prompting text(s) and the actual response, the response will be assessed as Insufficient.

In January, students dealt with the topic of “the interplay between satisfaction and regret in an individual’s life” in a number of different ways. In many cases, the concept of “regret” was developed more explicitly while the aspect of “satisfaction” tended to be implied. Weaker responses typically did not consider the “interplay” between the two concepts in any meaningful way. Responses of this type sometimes identified that an individual experienced satisfaction or regret, but they developed little, if any, connection between the two. In some cases, students dealt solely with one concept or the other, thus displaying an incomplete understanding of the assigned topic.

Straightforward responses often identified that an individual could experience both satisfaction and regret, but the focus tended to be placed on how an individual came to either experience satisfaction by avoiding regret, or experience regret because of a blind pursuit of satisfaction. Responses that were more complex and revealed greater understanding of the texts and topic addressed the element of “interplay” more fully. In many cases, they considered the topic in terms of what resulted from the interplay or what impact the interplay had on an individual. Furthermore, many of these responses explored the temporal qualities of both satisfaction and regret and how these feelings could change over time and with reflection.

Many students found that the first prompting text, “Poem of Regret for an Old Friend” by Meghan O’Rourke, offered a number of entry points for both creative and analytic responses. Students utilized specific images and symbols within the poem as representative of either satisfaction or regret. The excerpt from Sean Michaels’ novel Us Conductors provided students with an episode where the narrator felt satisfaction in a moment that turned to shame and regret later on. The photograph of a wealthy landowner in “Portugal, 1964,” by Thomas Hoepker, was by far the most commonly referenced prompting text. Many students speculated on the circumstances that led to the man being seated alone at the dinner table. Stronger responses focused on and utilized key details and technical elements of the photograph to develop their ideas more fully.

The topic in June focused on “an individual’s efforts to build a legacy of lasting significance” and invited students to consider the concept of “legacy” from a number of perspectives. Weaker responses typically did not explicitly address the concept of legacy; rather, they tended to have only a tenuous link to the topic through a discussion of work or effort. More straightforward responses often developed the aspect of legacy as something that was passed on, whether that was something material in nature or more of an influence or memory. Stronger responses often grappled with the aspect of “efforts” and, in many cases, were much more explicit in how they defined legacy and why it was significant.
Tony Harrison’s poem “The Icing Hand” was referenced by a number of students, particularly those who considered legacy as related to memories and familial bonds. Some students opted to do straight analytical responses of the poem, finding a number of poetic devices and images with which to develop insightful commentaries. The excerpt from Zadie Smith’s novel NW provided another example of the dynamics of parents and children. Students also recognized and explored the narrator’s anxiety over not having created a legacy for himself or others but was even going so far as to sell off a car that was a gift from his father. Many students used the image of a factory worker from Olivier Coulange’s series Working Class Heroes as the starting point for narratives. As in January, stronger responses of this type incorporated key details and were also able to develop interpretive ideas based upon techniques evident within the visual.

Assignment II: Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts Assignment

Overall performance on the Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts Assignment remained relatively consistent with previous administrations. In January, students were asked to write about “the ways in which the feelings of satisfaction and regret influence an individual’s actions.” As with the first assignment, students were able to approach the topic from a number of different perspectives. The narrative structure of the chosen literary text often guided students in their analysis. In some cases, students analyzed how a character’s desire for satisfaction or avoidance of regret influenced action. In other cases, students looked at a character’s past actions and the associated feelings which, in turn, influenced their actions. In weaker responses, students tended to provide just a description or recounting of a character’s actions. The aspects of satisfaction and regret were often reduced to a simple statement that a character felt one or the other or both, but there was little, if any, connection between these feelings and the character’s actions. Straightforward responses tended to offer some form of causal connection, such as how a character’s desire for satisfaction or avoidance of regret influenced action. Stronger responses typically explored more fully the nature and quality of the feelings of satisfaction and regret and explained how they played an active role in influencing actions. Similar to the first assignment, stronger responses recognized that a character’s feelings were not necessarily fixed and a situation or event that brought satisfaction at one point could also bring about feelings of regret at a later point in life.

In June, students were asked about “the role integrity plays when an individual attempts to build a lasting legacy.” Similar to in January, students were able to build upon their understanding of elements of the topic from the first assignment and consider them with a different focus. In weaker responses, the concept of integrity was often vague or unclear and the response would often end up simply retelling the events of the text. More straightforward responses often regarded characters as either having integrity or not, and how that quality or character trait influenced their actions. In stronger responses, students explained how integrity (or the lack thereof) manifested itself in characters and their actions. Many students considered integrity from a moral or ethical standpoint, but some also considered integrity from the perspective of being consistent or steadfast in goals or outlook on life. These stronger responses also provided more specific explanation of what constituted a legacy for a character.

On the whole, in both January and June, markers indicated how important it was for students to recognize that the more narrowed and focused topics of the Critical/Analytical Response to Literary Texts Assignment require a confident and accurate understanding of the key words and phrases of the topic in order to determine subtleties and connotations. From this understanding of the topic, students are then better able to make a deliberate choice of a studied literary text as a starting point. Such careful selection can then lead to an arrangement of ideas and evidence that will allow the student to address the topic in its entirety. In some cases, markers noted that students seemed to have chosen a text for reasons of personal comfort and familiarity rather than for reasons of a good fit with the topic. Granted, students should not write on a text that they do not know well (no matter how tidily it fits the topic), but the awkwardness of some student choices speaks to the necessity of students entering the exam having mastered a number of different texts that they can write on with confidence. Better responses clearly demonstrated a purposeful choice of literature, and the ensuing response reflected a more thorough and complete understanding of the relationship between topic, text, and analysis.

Markers also noted that the manner in which students analyzed their chosen text and developed their ideas relative to the topic had a bearing on overall performance. Students who approached this assignment by simply identifying and describing examples or situations in their chosen text that illustrated the assigned topic typically did little to address significance, human complexity, or causal relationships. Without thoughtful consideration of such aspects, students do not afford themselves the opportunity to provide perceptive ideas, in-depth analysis, or competent literary interpretations on the assigned topic. Markers also noted that weaker responses often exhibited large textual gaps or did not account for critical moments in the text. While it is not possible (or even desirable) for students to write on the “entire” text of an extended work, when the lack of discussion of key events leads to uncertainty about how well a student understands the text, it becomes problematic. In better responses, the supporting evidence and textual details were clearly selected and arranged in such way that demonstrated a cohesive structure. This arrangement resulted in the establishment of a unified controlling idea and contributed to the thoughtful development of interpretations and ideas in relation to the topic.

While the majority of students clearly attempted to address the assigned topic throughout their response, in both January and June some markers noted a particular “problem” type of paper. These were responses where the introduction would clearly be on topic and seemingly leading to a focused analysis. However, the body of the response would not develop ideas relative to the assigned topic. The most challenging papers of this type to mark where those in which the student not only included considerable detail from the text, but also often provided some form of literary criticism, such as a commentary on symbolism or other literary devices. In papers of this type, both the level of detail and commentary clearly demonstrated that the student had some understanding of the text itself, but because the focus was not on the assigned topic, markers were left with the difficult task of scoring Thought and Understanding. While students are expected and encouraged to incorporate relevant details from a text they have studied, they also need to keep in mind that markers will be considering “how effectively the student’s ideas relate to the assignment” and will be assessing “the quality of the literary interpretations to show understanding of the text relative to the topic.” In the most extreme case, where the student has provided only literary analysis with no reference to the assigned topic, the response will be scored as Insufficient for not having demonstrated evidence of an attempt to fulfill the task presented in the assignment. Careful consideration of the assigned topic and deliberate planning can help the student focus the discussion appropriately.
Part B: Reading

In the 2019 examinations, students demonstrated that they could apply English Language Arts 30–1 subject-specific knowledge such as the use of figurative language and rhetorical devices. As well, students demonstrated the ability to comprehend and interpret print texts from various genres that have multiple levels of meaning and considerable sophistication. Consistent with results from previous administrations, results within the Blueprint Reporting Categories 1 and 2 indicate that students who meet the acceptable standard are able to draw inferences from the personality traits, roles, relationships, motivations, attitudes, and values of characters presented in both straightforward and complex texts. As in previous administrations, the most difficult questions required students to recognize the tone and the effect created by the use of various literary devices and text features in order to draw inferences or to make generalizations regarding a character's values and/or a text creator's attitude toward context, subject, or characters. More proficient students were able to identify the text creator's intended main idea, especially when such themes were implied rather than stated explicitly.
