This document contains a full release of the English form of the 2010 Grade 9 Social Studies Achievement Test.

Released test items, which contained approximately 25% of the total number of test items from previously secured achievement tests, were mailed to school administrators each fall from 2004 to 2006 and were available to teachers in only print form because of copyright limitations. Every second year, as of the fall of 2007, a complete test for all achievement test subjects and grades (except grades 6 and 9 Social Studies; grades 3, 6, and 9 Français/French Language Arts; and Grade 9 Knowledge and Employability courses) will be posted on the Alberta Education website. A test blueprint and an answer key that includes the difficulty, reporting category, test section, and item description for each test item will also be included. These materials, along with the Program of Studies and Subject Bulletin, provide information that can be used to inform instructional practice.

Assessment highlights provide information about the overall test, the test blueprints, and student performance on the Grade 9 Social Studies Achievement Test. Also provided is commentary on student performance at the acceptable standard and the standard of excellence on the achievement test. This information is intended for teachers and is best used in conjunction with the multi-year and detailed school reports that are available to schools via the extranet. Assessment Highlights reports for all achievement test subjects and grades will be posted on the Alberta Education website every year in the fall.

For further information, contact Harvey Stables, Grade 9 Humanities Assessment Standards Team Leader, at Harvey.Stables@gov.ab.ca; Laurie Paddock, Grade 9 Humanities Examiner, at Laurie.Paddock@gov.ab.ca; or Ken Marcellus, Director, Achievement Testing Branch, at Ken.Marcellus@gov.ab.ca at the Assessment Sector, or call (780) 427-0010. Sources Booklet

Description

The Grade 9 Social Studies Achievement Test has two booklets:

- the Sources Booklet, which contains 13 sets of source materials
- the Questions Booklet, which contains 50 multiple-choice questions

This test was developed to be completed in 80 minutes; however, you may take an additional 30 minutes to complete the test.

Instructions

- You may not use a dictionary, a thesaurus, or other reference materials.
- Be sure that you have a Sources Booklet and a Questions Booklet.

You may write in this booklet if you find it helpful.

Make sure that your answers to the multiple-choice questions are placed on the answer sheet provided.

2010
The Sources Booklet is divided into two sections as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section One: Issues for Canadians: Governance and Rights contains 8 sets of source materials. There are 30 multiple-choice questions in the Questions Booklet based upon these source sets (worth 60% of the total test mark).</th>

Question: As a citizen of Canada, do you vote in federal elections?

Answers:

- Yes
  - Reason U: As citizens of Canada, we have an obligation to vote.
  - Reason V: The political party whose members win the most seats in the House of Commons ensures that the interests of the majority of Canadians are represented.
  - Reason W: By voting, I am taking an active role in determining who will represent my interests in the Parliament of Canada.

- No
  - Reason X: I cannot vote directly for the political candidate I wish to be prime minister of Canada.
  - Reason Y: Once elected, political leaders put the interests of their political parties ahead of the interests of the Canadians they represent.
  - Reason Z: Under Canada’s current system, the percentage of votes received by political parties nationally does not equal their percentage of seats.

The Australian system has shown us that small fines are sufficient to influence a change in voting patterns. In that country, if you fail to show up on voting day, you will receive a form letter in the mail requesting that you pay a fine of approximately AUS. $20 or provide a reason such as travel, illness, religious objections, etc. This takes care of about 95 per cent of the no-show cases. Only about 5 per cent of those who do not show up to vote in Australia pay a fine.

Who We Are
The Big Business Federation of Canada (BBFC) is dedicated to furthering the interests of business people and corporate executives. Founded in 1990, the BBFC has over 64,000 supporters nationwide.

What We Do
BBFC offices hold press conferences and issue news releases to advocate the common interests of big businesses and corporations.

How We Succeed
BBFC representatives meet privately with government officials, organize petition drives, and organize campaigns to reduce federal regulations on Canadian businesses and corporations.

Our Successes
The BBFC has fought and won many battles with government. We have succeeded in getting the government to cut corporate taxes, limit increases in minimum wages, and lower interest rates.

If you are a business person or corporate executive, join the Big Business Federation of Canada today!

In Eldridge v. British Columbia, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled in favour of Robin Eldridge and John and Linda Warren, three people who had been born deaf and could not communicate effectively with their doctors during medical appointments and hospital visits. They needed sign language interpreters, which were not provided. The Court decided that for deaf patients, sign language interpretation must be funded by the British Columbia Medicare system.

Four Views on the Interim Métis Harvesting Agreements

Sportsmen of Alberta

The Supreme Court of Canada has determined that subsistence equates to food. The Métis Nation of Alberta (MNA) has expanded that definition to include clothing, shelter, ceremonial, religious, and cultural pursuits. In reality, almost everyone who hunts in Alberta today does so primarily as a form of recreation – Métis included. What the Métis are claiming is “subsistence” – is in reality, recreation.

—from Impacts of the Interim Métis Harvesting Agreements

Jean Teillet, Métis lawyer

If you don’t have the right to take your kids out on the land and teach them what you were taught and to pass on your heritage to the future generations, it is nothing less than a death sentence on the Métis … because in the end it will mean there will be no Métis people who know what it means to be Métis.

—from Canoe.ca

Audrey Poitras, Métis Nation of Alberta president

Harvesting has been a historic tradition of our people since before Canada was formed. Our people continue this practice today as a means of sustaining our distinct identity and nurturing our special relationship to the land. This is why our rights are protected in Canada’s Constitution.

—from the Edmonton Journal

MLA Committee on Métis Harvesting

The Government of Alberta is a leader in the recognition of Métis culture and society. Determining who can then exercise Métis rights and where these rights can be exercised is the most significant challenge for the Government of Alberta. The Committee recommends that the Government continue to affirm and recognize the constitutionally guaranteed rights of Métis peoples, including the judicially recognized rights to harvest fish and wildlife.

Everyone in Alberta knows about the shortage of workers. Our expanding economy is expected to create 400,000 new jobs between 2004 and 2014, but the province estimates only 300,000 Canadian-born workers will enter the job market here. That will mean a shortage of 100,000 workers, not just in the new industrial projects and housing construction, but also in schools, hospitals, grocery stores, banks, libraries, public transit, the arts and other vital public services.

Consider the Now Hiring signs in every corner of Alberta, and start multiplying. By 2015, according to the government’s moderate estimates, Alberta will need almost 1,000 doctors, dentists and veterinarians; 3,077 carpenters and cabinetmakers; 5,432 cashiers; 2,007 bank and insurance workers; 3,917 mechanics—and that is just the beginning of the official worry list. Alberta is competing for workers with every western industrialized nation in an era of declining birth rates and retiring baby boomers. Skilled workers are finding new opportunities in their own nations. With elbows up, every province in Canada is struggling to bring the same immigrants to its corner of the map.

The government of Alberta wants to bring thousands of people here to work. We immigrants are already here. Why can’t employers hire us? We have qualifications but cannot find jobs that pay more than minimum wage.

Speaker X
I was very excited when I immigrated to Alberta. My hopes are being reached as I am learning English and have received assistance from the Alberta government in finding a job and a place to live.

Speaker Y
I support the efforts of the Alberta government to attract more immigrants. Since coming here, I have found a full-time job and am able to buy the things that I want. I am very happy to be living in Alberta.

Speaker Z
Our Alberta government wants more people to come here, but the immigrants who are already here are suffering. The rich are getting richer, but we are getting poorer. Rent and food are expensive here, and the minimum wage is low.

I was 23 years old when I was forced to flee my homeland in 1999 with nothing but the clothes I was wearing. The police gave me five minutes to leave. I ran to the railway station, boarded a train, and then waited 15 hours to be allowed to cross the border. Once across, I went to a refugee camp in an open field where I lived in a tent for the next two months. In that miserable camp, I worried about my future. Fortunately, some Western countries, Canada included, were selecting refugees at that camp. I was interviewed and, the next day, I saw my name on a notice board. I was going to Canada.

Farm Worker Exemptions in Alberta’s Labour Legislation, 2008

Employment Standards Code
- Agricultural workers are exempt from most provisions of the Code, including minimum wage, overtime, hours of work, statutory holidays, vacation, and the employment of children.

Labour Relations Code
- A section of the Code indicates that the Code does not apply to agricultural workers, meaning farm workers cannot join a union.

Occupational Health and Safety Act
- In the Act, farming operations are excluded from the definition of “occupation,” which effectively excludes farm workers from health and safety protection.

Workers’ Compensation Act
- The Act lists 22 agriculture-related industries that are exempted from mandatory workers’ compensation coverage.

The Times

Supreme Court ruling affirms labour rights are human rights

Ottawa (8 June 2007) – The Supreme Court of Canada ruled today that the right of workers to belong to labour unions is protected by the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms. This right, the court noted, promotes and enhances fundamental Charter values such as equality and democracy in Canada.

Source IV

Labour unions have served an important purpose in Canada’s history by protecting workers from the abuses of capitalism. Support for labour unions among workers today, however, is declining. Many union demands regarding working conditions and terms of employment are presently guaranteed by law. Unions deprive workers of personal choice—in some professions, union membership is a requirement of employment and, once a worker becomes a member of a union, he or she is required to do what the majority of union members determines must be done even if he or she disagrees.

Lessons learned from a yearlong no-shopping experiment
Savings and stronger family connections the payoff for couple who veered off the consumer track

Robin Summerfield
Calgary Herald

It started out as an experiment in not shopping for one year.
And 11 months in, one couple in Cochrane, 35 kilometres northwest of Calgary, has learned the secret to happiness: not buying.
Tom and Malora Mulhern’s story goes back to Jan. 1, when the couple, with their three-year-old son Noah, vowed to stop buying stuff for one year.
Under their rules of disengagement, the Mulherns vowed to only buy essentials such as food, and new socks and underwear when necessary. If something broke down or wore out, they would hit the thrift stores or go online to buy second-hand or swap goods with others.
Their goal was to downsize their lives and get off the consumption treadmill.

They weren’t out to judge others for their buying habits; they simply wanted to examine their own shopping habits.
“We wanted to simplify our lives and break our buying habit and enjoy our family, and not be, ‘What else can we get?’” explains Malora, 27, a stay-at-home mom.
They have documented their experience at ourcompactlife.org.
Eleven months later, the couple has wiped out a $9,000 student loan and put an additional $7,000 in the bank.
They’ve managed to do it living in a $400-a-month basement suite on Tom’s $48,000-a-year salary as a youth pastor at Dalhousie Community Church in northwest Calgary.
“It’s fabulous,” Malora says of the $16,000 total savings. “I feel like we’re broken (of our shopping habit).”

—from the Edmonton Journal

I work hard for my money and I should be allowed to decide what to do with it! If I decide I want to buy new things every week, then I should be able to.
I’m helping others by shopping because it provides jobs for people at businesses. By choosing what I will buy, I influence what the companies are going to make. I am glad that I live in a country where I am free to make my own decisions.

Tempers flared Thursday as Prime Minister Stephen Harper used a new report that warned of skyrocketing energy prices and a crippling recession to justify his decision to walk away from Canada’s international commitments under the Kyoto Protocol.

While opposition parties and environmentalists called it bogus and irresponsible fearmongering, the Conservatives said the report, paid for by taxpayers and verified by five independent economists, proved Canada would be hard-pressed to close the gap between its current pollution levels and its commitment from the 1997 climate-change agreement signed by the previous Liberal government.

Questions Booklet

Description

The Grade 9 Social Studies Achievement Test has two booklets:

• the Questions Booklet, which contains 50 multiple-choice questions

• the Sources Booklet, which contains 13 sets of source materials

This test was developed to be completed in 80 minutes; however, you may take an additional 30 minutes to complete the test.

Instructions

• You may not use a dictionary, a thesaurus, or other reference materials.

• Be sure that you have a Questions Booklet and a Sources Booklet.

• Make sure that the number of the question on your answer sheet matches the number of the question you are answering.

• Read each question carefully, and choose the correct or best answer.

Example

A topic of discussion that is best understood through careful consideration of differing viewpoints and perspectives is called

A. a fact
B. an issue
C. a source
D. an example

Answer Sheet

Use only an HB pencil to mark your answer.

If you change an answer, erase your first mark completely.

Answer every question.

You may write in this booklet if you find it helpful.

Make sure that your answers to the multiple-choice questions are placed on the answer sheet provided.
