

Referrals to Resources

Resources are available to help those who require assistance or support. Some of these services are free and others have costs. Resources marked with an asterisk (*) can be reached toll-free by following the directions at the end of this sheet.

Legal help

The Maintenance Enforcement Program (MEP) cannot provide legal advice or arrange legal representation for its clients. Also, MEP cannot change court orders or agreements for child and spousal support, as this must be done by the courts.

If you do not have a lawyer but feel you need legal representation or advice, you may wish to contact:

Legal Aid Alberta*

Legal Aid Alberta provides legal assistance at a reduced cost to people who cannot afford to pay a lawyer. Call or go to the Legal Aid Alberta website to see if you are eligible to receive Legal Aid services.

Lawyer Referral Service

The Law Society of Alberta provides the Lawyer Referral Service to help people find local lawyers to review what legal services might be helpful. Up to three lawyers can be contacted for a free half-hour interview. During the interview the caller can discuss their legal situation to decide if the lawyer would be a good fit for them, and ask what it would cost to have legal work done.

Alberta Limited Legal Services Project

The Alberta Limited Legal Services Project is an initiative of local lawyers aimed at providing Albertans with access to the legal services they want, when they want them, at a price they can afford. The Limited Legal Services Project connects Albertans with lawyers who will help with just part of the case, not all of it.
