

Refocusing Alberta's Health System

Current Health System

- Currently, one single organization - Alberta Health Services (AHS) - is responsible for the planning and delivery of health services in Alberta
- The model does not have clear accountabilities for primary health care, continuing care, and mental health care, and lacks coordination
- This has resulted in increasing pressure and a lack of focus on acute care

Current Health System

- Even though Alberta spends a large amount on health, outcomes are not where they should be
- Patients face challenges accessing the right healthcare, especially in rural, remote, and Indigenous communities
- There is a lack of community input and confusion around how decisions are made
- Health care workers can be better supported and leadership can be improved to create better outcomes for workers and patients

Reason for Change

- The government knows the health care system isn't working for Albertans, which is why it needs to change
- We want to meet the health needs of Albertans and empower health care workers to deliver better care
- We must reduce pressure on acute care and increase focus in other areas to create a more sustainable system
- These changes will strengthen the role of local decision-making
- We need to prioritize the wellbeing of health care workers
- Finally, we want the right care when and where Albertans need it

Future Health System

- Significant changes are required to address these challenges
- The future system will have four organizations dedicated to each major health care sector, instead of one organization being spread too thin
- The future system is focused on:
 - Having a seamless patient journey
 - Valuing the workforce
 - Being cost-effective
 - Promoting health prevention and well-being

Structures

Role: Minister of Health

- The Minister of Health, together with the Minister of Mental Health and Addiction, is responsible for making sure the four organizations work together and achieve their goals
- The Minister of Health sets policies and direction to protect and promote the health of Albertans
- The Minister of Health oversees health care services (e.g., AHS, Covenant Health, etc.)

Role: Four Organizations

The four organizations will provide oversight and coordination of service delivery to:

- Meet the needs of patients by improving outcomes and access
- Provide seamless care between different health care providers
- Improve local decision-making
- Prioritize the wellbeing and expertise of health care workers
- The refocused system will divide the funding across the four organizations to prioritize health outcomes

Acute Care Overview

Oversees delivery of hospital care, urgent care, cancer care, clinical operations, surgeries, and emergency medical services

AHS will continue to deliver acute care and will report to the Acute Care Organization; if you work for AHS today, you will work for AHS tomorrow

Goals:

1. Shorter wait times for emergency departments and surgeries
2. Improve EMS response time
3. Higher quality care and better access to care in rural, remote and Indigenous communities

Continuing Care Overview

Oversees and coordinates continuing care, including long-term care services, home care services, supportive living accommodations

Goals:

1. Fair, timely, and consistent access
2. More beds in the places where Albertans need them most
3. Better long-term care for patients improved access to other health and social service supports

Primary Care Overview

Oversees and coordinates primary care services and providers, such as family doctors and primary care networks

Goals:

1. Every Albertan will have a primary care provider
2. Timely access to high-quality primary care services
3. Strong teams of health care professionals, including family doctors, nurse practitioners, and other primary care providers

Mental Health and Addiction Overview

Responsible for the delivery of mental health and addiction care in both in-patient and out-patient settings for children and adults

Goals:

1. Support Albertans struggling with addiction and/or mental health challenges
2. Ensure Albertans can access recovery-oriented supports
3. Improve mental health and addiction care for Albertans by expanding access to treatment and recovery supports

Role: Advisory Councils

12 Regional Advisory Councils and One Indigenous Advisory Council will:

- Represent and empower regional perspectives
- Advise the four new organizations
- Provide input on local priorities, capital, and system plans
- Bring forward proposals for local initiatives and innovative solutions

Continued Health Service Delivery

The ways Albertans access health services will not change

- If you have a health emergency, a surgery or are getting treatment for a serious illness, you will still go to a hospital or acute care facility
- Patients will still go to a family doctor, walk-in clinic or other primary care provider for checkups or help with a general health concern
- Patients with mental health or addiction concerns will still access usual treatment services and can call AHS helplines or 2-1-1 to get connected with resources
- Albertans who require continuing care services will still get the support they need in continuing care homes or from home care

Transition Principles

To help guide the transition, the government is committed to the following principles:

- Collaborate with health system partners, stakeholders and the public to collect advice to support the transition to the new structure
- Build on existing strengths and identify areas that need improvement
- Ensure all work is centered on positive patient outcomes
- Minimize disruption faced by workforce and for patients
- Remain committed to efficient and cost-effective decision making

Implementation

Alberta Health is looking for your help to implement the new health organizations. In the roundtable discussions, we are interested in knowing:

- What are the strengths within the health care system in your community today?
- What is not working with the system and what can be done to change it?
- How can the new organizations work together?
- How can government hold the new organizations accountable and how should we report progress back to Albertans?
- What does local decision-making look like?
- What supports can help the health care workforce, patients, caregivers and communities as these changes are made?
